Dear Friends,

He Stepped Forth A Giant Among Men!

Lincoln said at Gettysburg: “The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it will never forget what they did here.”

We do not care for or long remember those who have ruled us, but we will never forget those who have served us. We won't forget the Lincolns that knocked off the shackles of slavery; we won't forget the Washington's that suffered at Valley Forge, in snow knee-deep, for our liberty.

So, don't you think that if we appreciate service, Almighty God does, too? God appreciates the man who will go on the firing line and become bullet meat in the service of the cross.

No, we'll never forget that big, homely, gaunt, cadaverous, noble man whom God decreed should be born in a log cabin. For employment God gave him the task of splitting rails and poling a raft on the Mississippi. And while other young men with far better opportunities and advantages were sleeping off a drunk, Abraham Lincoln spread ashes on the hearth and with a pine knoll for a candle and a splinter for a pencil, solved problems.

Now and then the eyes of young Abraham Lincoln would grow dim and he would be on the verge of giving up in discouragement. But the angels would flap their wings and sing to cheer him up. “Don't cash in yet, Abraham,” they would say, and he would buckle up his cotton yarn calluses and start in again.

Then the day came when, unknown, he wandered into a slave mart in the South. He saw the poor blacks being sold into bondage and his heart was touched. His big frame tightened and his fists clenched as he watched, and as he turned away he said: “By the eternal God, if I ever get a chance to hit that thing, I'll hit it hard.” And God gave him his chance.

Nobody knew how it happened, but one bright morning the world woke up and went looking for a great man. The search led to a little cabin in Illinois. The world knocked at the door.

Abraham Lincoln heard the knock and stood up so great and tall and mighty that the roof fell off and the logs rolled away. And he stepped forth a giant among men.

The World is Looking For Great Men & Women!

I was listening the other day to a speech given by Robert Kennedy during his campaign for the 1968 Presidential race. I was impressed by the eloquence of speech, how he was able to talk so plainly and passionately about what was happening in our land. Just months earlier Martin Luther King had given his famous, “I Have a Dream” speech that not only stirred our hearts but gripped many to take action against the injustices happening across this great land of ours.

I believe that the times we are living in right now are as turbulent as the ones these men lived in. I began to ponder, what has happened that we are not stirred by the words of our leaders anymore. Where are those men and women whose eloquence of speech stirred the depths of our hearts and souls with words that called for the courage and conviction to do what we know is the right thing to do. I believe we are living in the days that men and women of courage are going to step to the forefront and with conviction of heart and soul will speak out those things that our spirits know to be true.

Many of you in the body of Christ have been going through a breaking process during the last seven years. Some have drunk from the bottle of despair and drained all the dregs of discouragement that lay at the bottom. Others buckled down and kept going for they knew no other way. Maybe they took heed to the flapping of angel wings and the singing of the angels to encourage them. Whatever it may have been I know in my spirit this, "The world long awaits for the church to come to the forefront and say with conviction what it knows in its heart is truth. The world is looking for great men and women."

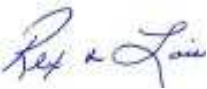

2007 - The Year The Roof Fell and The Logs Rolled Away!

I don't know where you are at right now but I sense in my spirit that we are all in similar places. I am saying this to you so that you will be aware that the world is about to come knocking at many doors in 2007. The world is looking for someone who not only hears the knock but stands up and comes forth a giant. Since 2005 there have been doors that have been set before us. These doors represented choices we have had the opportunities to make. There are two primary doors. One is the door of closure to past hurts, disappointments and failures. It will become a door of death if we do not enter in and bring closure to the memories it contains. The other is the door of opportunity. A door of life that points you onward toward your destiny.

Deuteronomy 30:19, This day I call heaven and earth as witnesses against you that I have set before you life and death, blessings and curses. Now choose life, so that you and your children may live and that you may love the LORD your God, listen to his voice, and hold fast to him.

The fictional General Maximus Decimus Meridius in the movie Gladiator, sought to stir up his soldiers by challenging them to do their very best. He makes this profound statement that should stir each one of us. "What we do in life echoes in eternity."

The question I pose to you is this. When the world knocks at your door in 2007, as it most assuredly will.....'Will you stand tall and come forth a giant?'

As we get ready for 2007 and the campaigns that are before Kingdom Life Ministry will you consider joining ranks with us today in the work that is at hand.

Each man should give what he has decided in his heart to give, not reluctantly or under compulsion, for God loves a cheerful giver. And God is able to make all grace abound to you, so that in all things at all times, having all that you need, you will abound in every good work. As it is written:

"He has scattered abroad his gifts to the poor; his righteousness endures forever."
